The Origin Of Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing
Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing was the idea of a disabled veteran beginning a new stage of life. Having fulfilled the duties of making the country safe, the next step was to help that country to grow. The way forward was by allowing businesses to find the customers and clients they needed to increase revenues. That small start-up steadily grew and today has a staff with over 50 years of combined experience in the marketing industry.

Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing first entered the marketing sector during a transitional phase. Analog techniques like direct mail had dominated for decades, but digital marketing was already making its presence known, showing promise, but not yet widely used. The company focused its efforts on direct mail, which imparted crucial lessons about acquiring data, organization, and analytics. As digital marketing rose to prominence, those same lessons allowed the company to smoothly transition to the new platform, enjoying an early mover advantage that benefited both the company and its clients.

Today, Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing has greatly expanded its service range. From only working in the hometown of Las Vegas, Nevada, the company now services all of the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii. Clients who want complete North American coverage can also get lists from Mexico and Canada. And for clients with international ambitions, lists are available from across the Atlantic for European Union nations such as France.

Preventing Abuse Is A Passion

Many Americans have a strong dislike for unfair treatment, but that attitude can become a larger passion when it applies to defenseless innocents, such as animals that are pets. People tend to have very strong feelings of protectiveness when it comes to the helpless, vulnerable, or innocent, and a pet is often all of these things. It's one reason why people react so strongly when they hear about animals being abused and are often motivated to take action, especially in ways that can make a meaningful difference, such as donations.

Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing has collected lists of people who have actively donated to abused animal and pet causes, whether direct to shelters or charity drives. Animal abuse is an important issue for many, and this wish to prevent it or help already abused animals goes across a broad range of different economic classes. Whether it's a middle-class family willing to donate a few dollars a month or an affluent, wealthy donor that makes sizable donations to keep a shelter running for an entire year or more, the motivation in these cases is typically to help animals that can't help themselves and need assistance from caring people, with the proper finances behind to make a real difference.

For charity organizations, having direct access to donors with an active track record can speed up the donation process considerably. Rather than traditional canvassing, which tries to approach as many people as possible in the hopes that a tiny minority will be receptive, using a list with already committed donors results in fewer overall numbers approached, but with a much higher engagement rate positive response resulting in a donation.

Targeting The Right Donors

Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing has lists of abused pet charity donors throughout the entire United States. Lists can be made available with specific geographic breakdowns, such as targeting the donors only in one city, one part of the state, or even an entire region, such as only the Deep South. However, it's also possible to get abused pet charity donor lists based on specific demographics. Targeting only a particular faith, such as Jewish donors, or ethnicity, appealing to Asian donors, can also be accommodated. Donors can even be broken down according to economic class if only high-net-worth individuals, for example, are the target.

Contact details can be made available in one or more formats. Physical mailing addresses can be accessed for direct mail campaigns. Email addresses are available for digital marketing campaigns. Phone numbers can be provided for telemarketing, and if there's a plan for SMS/Text-based marketing, cellular phone numbers can be provided to take advantage of that marketing channel.

Some businesses may also be interested in getting hands-on management of a direct mail campaign, but a lack of experience can cause uncertainty. For companies in this position, turnkey direct mail solutions make a perfect alternative. With this option, companies get direct management but within the framework of a guided experience. They are shown the process of concepts, the ultimate design, approving that design and manufacturing the materials, and, of course, getting access to lists for the final distribution. This takes place under one roof, with no need to outsource additional vendors at each stage.

If your business or organization needs to contact abused pet charity donors, contact Sprint Data Solutions Worldwide Marketing. Your support goes to an American company owned and operated by a disabled veteran when you work with us.
