

At the California Institute for Human Science, Students Benefit From A Holistic Approach to Clinical Psychology

The California Institute for Human Sciences' Clinical Psychology MA and Ph.D. programs emphasize the mind-body-spirit connection

ENCINITAS, CA, UNITED STATES, February 10, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The California Institute for Human Science \(CIHS\), a Mind-Body Consciousness university bridging science and spirituality, is proud to offer MA and Ph.D. programs in Clinical Psychology. The academic course load merges metaphysics and the study of mind-body-spirit to provide students with a holistic educational foundation.

Students at CIHS will be prepared for scientific research, practitioner roles and doctoral studies through the clinical psychology program. They will learn how to understand the multidimensional human spirit and apply transdisciplinary research, theory, and praxis for effective counseling in traditional and non-traditional settings.

The Ph.D. program includes state course requirements for licensure and personalized elective opportunities, and it features a traditional psychology curriculum with a greater emphasis on consciousness and spirituality for holistic wellness. Classes unique to the program include: Mind-Body and Energy is Psychology,

CIHS Program Director, Farnaz Khoromi

Sociocultural Influences and Intervention Strategies, Introduction to Energy Psychology, Pranic Healing, Psychology of the Chakras, and many more.

“Students who undergo study in the clinical psychology program are better able to act as stewards of humanity because they’re able to view people and the world at large through a broader lens of understanding,” Dr. Thomas Brophy, President of CIHS, said. “Incorporating the mind-body-spirit connection in clinical psychology study truly sets this program apart and better prepares students for real-world challenges.”

This summer, CIHS earned regional accreditation by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges, Senior College and University Commission, one of six institutional accrediting agencies in the nation. The distinction reaffirms the university’s commitment to excellence, adherence to rigorous academic standards and diligence of faculty and administration.

Students who study at CIHS have credited its programs with deepening their understanding of self and helping develop a mindful approach to living.
