Fats and Oils Market Trends:

The thriving food and beverage (F&B) industry represent one of the major factors bolstering the market growth. Apart from this, the increasing demand for oleochemicals in the production of lubricants, soaps, detergents, and paints around the world is contributing to the market growth. Moreover, key players are introducing products with no additives, preservatives and gluten, along with high protein levels. Furthermore, the rising environmental awareness among the masses and several initiatives undertaken by governments of numerous countries are driving the utilization of biodiesel. This, in turn, is creating a positive outlook for the market.
