-- The ongoing clinical trials of anticoagulant treatments for COVID-19 are shaping the global anticoagulants market. Major companies operating in the anticoagulants sector are concentrating on establishing clinical trials of anticoagulant medications to lower the risk of COVID-19 related blood clotting in adults. For instance, in March 2021, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in the USA has started the final of three Phase III clinical trials of blood thinners (anticoagulants) to prohibit life-threatening blood clots in elderly people with COVID-19. The ACTIV-4 trials will help to resolve concerns about the use of anticoagulants also known as antithrombotic in the treatment for COVID-19.

The increasing cardiovascular diseases are a key factor driving the growth of the anticoagulants market over the coming years. CVDs (cardiovascular diseases) are a category of heart and blood vessel problems. Cardiovascular diseases are the primary, source of death worldwide with low- and middle-income nations accounting for three-quarters of CVD deaths. Anticoagulation pharmacotherapy known as direct oral anticoagulants is used to minimize thrombosis in a variety of cardiovascular situations. Heart attacks and strokes were responsible for 85% of these deaths. According to the anticoagulants market research, the increasing cardiovascular diseases drive the growth of the anticoagulants market.
