

Store Up Meat with the ROADKILL ART App

The new ROADKILL ART app marks your roadkill location instantly on the app map and allows for a picture and up to a 30 second video.

CHARLESTON, SC, UNITED STATES, March 1, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- If you enjoy the delicious flavor of game meat especially deer or big game, the new Roadkill Art app has made it easy to acquire fresh roadkill just by checking what has been reported in the daily feed. Start filling up your refrigerator and freezer with squirrel, raccoon, skunk, possum, turkey, deer, elk or moose, what ever game meat your local roads provide. If you are not equipped to pick up roadkill you can become a roadkill reporter helping others load up the meat, one touch of the app and you have instantly reported roadkill no matter where you are in the United States, even Hawaii or Alaska.

As soon as you see something touch the Roadkill Art app icon.

Pull it off the road, process it, grill it, eat it, then turn it into art, Roadkill Art.”

Bree Criminger Horne

The best way to report roadkill in the app is to have a car cell phone mount that sits on top of your dashboard facing out the front window with the app on your home page so you can touch the icon at any split second. When you see something slow down as much as possible, hit the app icon, as the map appears hit the orange bar at the bottom of the page, you can now take a picture. If you are not going too fast or can stop you will be able to get up to a 30 second video. Commentating as you record is appreciated by other members, the videos provide real time content for members who like to see a close look and where the roadkill was found.

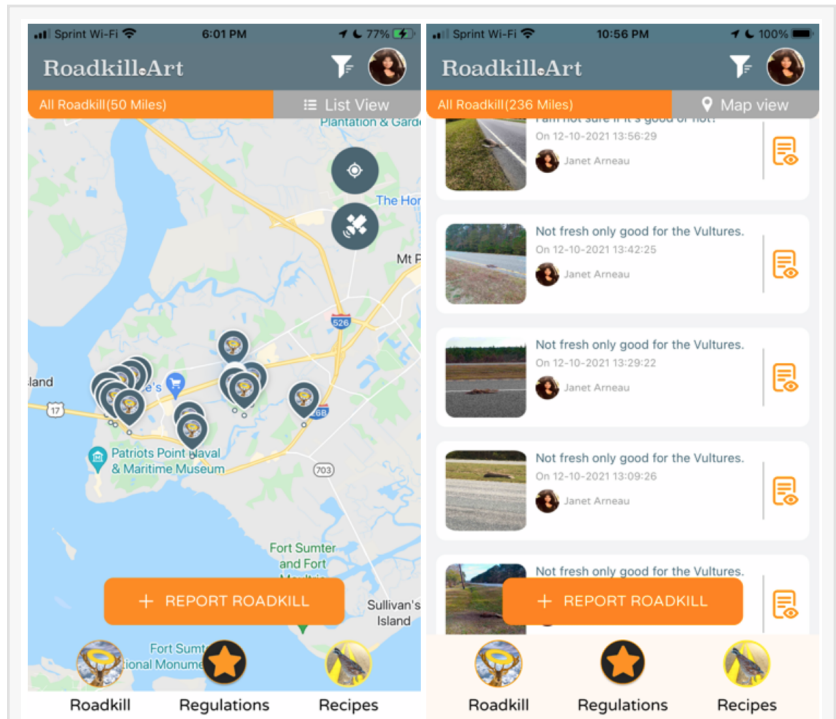

Ideally is having a roadkill partner, one person drives, the other person has their eyes peeled for roadkill while navigating the app, the way 'Roadkill Hunters' go out on their search in the wee early hours. Team work increases the odds of being able to load up big game roadkill and keeps safety in working with any traffic when pulling over. Most roadkill is produced when the sun is going down or has gone down, which is the time to find and pick up what's available before it becomes more damaged from morning work traffic. Even if you can not take the roadkill for yourself when you report it in the app you have given someone else, possibly 100 pounds of venison. The average buck in the USA weighing 225 lbs and the average doe weighting 150 lbs.

Roadkill Art is an app with a community of game meat lovers and skilled hunters. Though the app is free on both Google Play and Apple it is the registration process that keeps the group specific with the selection of ones hunting and game meat eating status. With the status choice, 'Not A hunter but like game meat', the roadkill door has flown open to non-hunter's that love a good venison steak. The how to skin and process a deer videos, connection to skilled processors and hunters within the app and on the Roadkill Art Facebook page, provides game meat lovers comfort and confidence loading up a deer. <https://www.facebook.com/roadkillart>

In Tennessee, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Georgia and Pennsylvania in October 2016 Arby's had a Venison Burger on their menu that sold out that day leaving many to wait for the next delivery, which was the following year October 2017. This time the Venison Burger was at all Arby's in all 50 states and again sold out that day, evidence America loves game meat. With no know date Arby's will ever bring back this Venison Burger next time you are fixing a roadkill deer burger try it the way Arby's served it, with a Juniper Berry sauce and Fried Onions, it proved irresistible.
