Nursing the Dance

Jan Carol RN, writes, "After five years as a victim of domestic violence, I took my nursing degree and decided to help others. My personal life changed my professional life dramatically, forever. I became a psychiatric nurse trying to understand the cycle of violence and why some people do the things they do. How does an individual's mind work? At the time, if you beat your horse, you went to jail. If you beat your wife, it was considered a 'family matter.' I am lucky to be alive! The stories are real. Nursing The Dance has been an amazing, rewarding, exciting, lifesaving career."

Published by Book Vine Press, Jan Carol RN's new book, reminds readers that any kind of abuse is still abuse, and no one should suffer from it.

Through this book, the author tells readers, especially those who have experienced abuse, that they are not alone. Someone out there is waiting for them to tell them what their partner is doing to them. This book has served its purpose well by inspiring its readers to never be afraid to seek help from the authorities.

If you or are victim of "intimate partner abuse" whether it is physical, emotional, psychological, sexual, or financial, you are in danger. Report it to the authorities, anonymously!"
