Today, the management of the American Management University has announced that they will make a donation of $550 to the Inland Valley Humane Society of Pomona. The donation aims to support the work done at Inland Valley Humane Society of Pomona and cushion the financial constraints involved in running the organization.

Inland Valley Humane Society of Pomona is a pet care agency established in 2011 to care for all animals. The organization was set up to provide a safe refuge for all sick, injured, abused, and abandoned animals. Additionally, the organization tries to lead the community in finding homes for all adoptable pets, foster compassion for all living things through education and outreach, promote the health and wellness of all pets in our community by providing accessible and affordable veterinary care, and reduce pet overpopulation through spay/neuter programs.

Speaking about the donation and the university's plans for the year, Roy Virgen, CEO of American Management University, had this to say, "We like the idea of helping those around us. We like knowing we can help out this fine non-profit. The entire Board of Directors are animal lovers, so this makes sense.” Dr. Amanda Kenderes, Chief Academic Officer of the University, added that “Animals and our pets depend so much upon us for love and support. The Inland Valley Humane Society has done so much for our local community.”

After their recent donation to the YMCA and now Inland Valley Humane Society of Pomona, AMU has proven its commitment to the announced plan of supporting its local community. The university’s management calls upon businesses and individuals in the community to lend their support for this worthy cause.
