Dr. Miguel Canales

explained Dr. Miguel Canales, medical director of Silicon Valley Aesthetic Dermatology, "That extra time in the beginning normally results in healthier-looking skin later on."

The Bay Area community can review the newly updated page on microdermabrasion at <https://svaestheticderm.com/microdermabrasian/>. Various types of skin issues can cause concern for an individual. Combining cosmetic and medical dermatology processes can help skin problems such as acne, eczema, dermatitis, and aging skin. Individual skin issues can improve by using a treatment like microdermabrasion, injectables, or microskin peels. A resident living around San Mateo and Burlingame can reach out to a clinic in Foster City. Dr. Miguel Canales can provide a no-obligation consultation around individual skin ailments. Interested persons can visit the dermatology contact page at <https://svaestheticderm.com/contact/> or the clinic skincare page at <https://svaestheticderm.com/skin-care/>.

MICRODERMABRASION IN FOSTER CITY CAN CLEAR UP SKIN PROBLEMS FOR RESIDENTS IN SAN MATEO AND BURLINGAME

Here is the background on this release. If an individual notices a strange skin rash, increased acne or wrinkles, the first thought could be to review medical websites. Locating a similar photo could lead someone down the wrong path and misdiagnose the problem. Speaking to a medical professional about a skin issue may be a better approach. Burlingame and San Mateo residents can find an expert ready to evaluate individual skin ailments at a nearby clinic in Foster City. Treatments including microdermabrasion could be the answer to cleaning up the skin for a Bay Area resident.

ABOUT SILICON VALLEY AESTHETIC DERMATOLOGY
