Market Overview

Devices used in diagnosing and treating dental illnesses and disorders make up the dental diagnostic and surgical equipment market. Dental chairs, handpieces, CAD/CAM systems, scaling units, instrument delivery systems, dental lasers, intraoral and extraoral radiography equipment, and CBCT scanners are examples of these items.

The market for dental equipment will develop as the incidence of oral disease rises and substantial shifts in oral care needs occur, such as patient preference for painless diagnoses and operations. Rapid and accurate diagnosis is made possible by technological advancements in the fields of imaging and radiology. Due to rising rates of oral illness and edentulousness, the growing elderly population is the primary consumer sector for this industry. In addition, increased demand for aesthetic dentistry is propelling the industry forward. End-users may now access more dental care services because of the growing number of dental clinics and practitioners, improving the worldwide dental devices market.

According to WHO, Globally, it is estimated that 2.3 billion people suffer from caries of permanent teeth and more than 530 million children suffer from caries of primary teeth. In most low- and middle-income countries, with increasing urbanization and changes in living conditions, the prevalence of oral diseases continues to increase.

COVID-19 Impact

COVID-19 pandemic has had a significant influence on the market for dental diagnostics and surgical equipment. According to the analysis, dental clinics revenue in 2020 has reduced significantly. Because dentists were unable to practice during the initial lockdown, revenue suffered the most. Dental clinics were closed during the curfew. Despite no revenues, wages and clinic rentals must be accounted for every month, producing a significant socio-economic impact. They only performed dental procedures in an emergency; otherwise, they postponed the procedures. COVID-19 saw a decrease in demand for dental diagnostics and surgical equipment. For instance: on an estimate globally almost 75% of private and non-private dental services were closed due to the protective measures against the COVID-19.
