relleno burrito they came out with a recently release mouth watering Carne Asada fries. A combination of french fries, with cheddar cheese, the choice of meat on top, fresh pico de gallo, topped with guacamole, mexican crema and cotija cheese. It's a flavor one can't resist. The restaurant offers diners a trendy vibe with a decent area for dining. The open kitchen lets one watch as they make the food as well as the fire from the grill. Javier explains what sets them apart from all other taco restaurants “it’s authenticity, we used mesquite charcoal it’s real fire, it gives the meat a smoky delicious flavor” growing up in Calexico CA a small town near the border the best tacos were just across the border where him and his friends would go after a night out. As the episode says, it’s truly a passionate rooted spot that Javier has created for the community, not only OC but in Southern California.
