The mission of the RealTrade real estate platform is to decentralize the real estate industry and give power back to real estate agents while taking it away from massive online industry giants. All members gain access to detailed property-based data so they can make educated, information-driven decisions while building relationships they can trust.

RealTrade Inc.’s platform empowers agents to develop and scale their businesses by directly connecting them with fellow agents, sellers, and buyers. The RealTrade platform is poised to change the real estate industry forever by providing the tools for community members to make sustainable, data-driven decisions about property investments and at the same time, setting up real estate agents for long-lasting success and autonomy.

"We are also excited to have Chime Technologies as a sponsor for our event," added Poole. "Chime is a powerful lead generation and CRM solution for real estate professionals. The Chime team works to advance real estate technology and improve productivity. They consistently evaluate real estate professionals needs, target automated communications, and assist buyers and sellers. Chime provides features and integrations that allow agents, teams, and real estate professionals in the industry to be more efficient and successful by using innovative technological strategies. At RealTrade, we are especially passionate about tech, and exploring the ways in which digital solutions can help real estate professionals thrive in the industry so we are excited to be working with them!"

RealTrade offers a unique community-centric model where buyers and sellers are empowered to connect online with local agents and agents with each other. The platform offers agents an opportunity to build their businesses with direct access to their customers and community.
