The single was recorded at Momboe Studios in Woodland Hills by Michael C. Mason and engineer/mixer Ross Pallone (Prince, Michael McDonald). Walters and Cassingham trade lead vocals while backed by an impressive supporting cast of players, including bassist Mick Mahan (Pat Benatar), guitarist Jon Woodhead (Leon Russel), and drummer Michael C. Mason. Filling out the sound with stereo keyboards are soundtrack pros Craig Dobbin and Jeff Alan Ross (Badfinger/Peter Asher).

The music of The Taproots was recently discovered by recording artist Jay Ferguson (Spirit, The Office) and Hollywood music producer and drummer Michael C. Mason. After Ferguson heard some demo tapes, he decided to record and mix four original songs at his Santa Barbara studio. Mason then went on to produce another ten tracks, pulling in some of L.A.'s finest studio and touring musicians for the project. Finally, they reached the point where it was time to release these recordings to the listening world, starting with this single, California Life.

"Great players with real stories to tell. Rocking yet literate. If John Steinbeck were in a band, this would be it."

-Jay Ferguson (Spirit, Jo Jo Gunne, The Office, CSI LA)

"Tom Walters is an extremely gifted writer and player. I've watched The Taproots evolve since the beginning. This new album is wonderful and I can't wait to play it on the show"

-Rob Kimball, Co-host "Pickin' Up The Tempo." - CBX Public Radio, San Luis Obispo / Santa Barbara
