

JOANN Acquires Industry-Leading Digital Printing Textile Platform Provider WeaveUp

Acquisition accelerates JOANN's digital textile printing and sourcing capabilities

DURHAM, NC, UNITED STATES, March 9, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ --

WeaveUp, the software platform that enables customers to realize the full potential of digital textile printing, has been acquired by JOANN, the nation's category leader in fabrics and sewing. JOANN has been a client of WeaveUp since 2017, and it was immediately clear that the companies shared a common vision for the promise of digital print technologies. JOANN first invested in WeaveUp in 2019, and now believes there is an opportunity to create even greater value by partnering even closer with the WeaveUp team.

We believe that WeaveUp's powerful platform services will bring JOANN's fabric offerings into a new realm and we are proud to announce this investment.”

Wade Miquelon, President & CEO of JOANN

“It's been a great partnership from the start,” said Flint Davis, President of WeaveUp. “The past five years have shown me that the JOANN team has the vision, the commitment, and the resources to propel digitally printed textiles forward into the mainstream. This acquisition allows us to accelerate the speed of our platform development and to continue to drive innovation in the on-demand product space.”

WeaveUp's SaaS platform helps companies leverage the advantages of digital textile printing. Its comprehensive array of product modules includes design upload, design management, product customization, design licensing, commission management, print room automation, and hybrid rotary / digital sourcing solutions. The WeaveUp platform enables the rapid prototyping, sampling, and short-run production that the textile industry has lacked in moving toward a digitally enabled future.

“We are excited to continue expanding JOANN's capabilities in the digital textile printing space and look forward to offering products that are printed on-demand with the best technologies available,” said Wade Miquelon, President & CEO of JOANN. “We believe that WeaveUp's powerful platform services will bring JOANN's fabric offerings into a new realm and we are proud to announce this investment.”

JOANN’s ownership means WeaveUp will have deeper resources to provide better service and deliver more rapid feature releases and new product development for our SaaS clients. Planned enhancements include: additional ways to upload and customize designs, a new, more flexible way to incorporate our platform into your website and a new platform for companies that want to streamline and accelerate product development.
