, a recognized leader in the advancement of quality end-of-life care, is pleased to have two staff representatives serving on National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization professional work groups. Glen Hubbard, CPA, MBA, CHFP, and the Agency's Chief Financial Officer and Chief Operating Officer, serves on the NHPCO Finance and Information Systems Steering Committee. Chelsie Searce, the Agency's Manager of Volunteer Services, serves on the NHPCO's Next Generation Leadership Advisory Council.

"Our agency is incredibly proud of these two professionals being recognized on the national stage", says Laura Owen, Chief Executive Officer. "Not only has their leadership been recognized by their colleagues, they are now contributing on a national level to the advancement of the hospice and palliative care industry."

In 2021, Glen Hubbard was invited to join the NHPCO Steering Committee to serve a 3-year term. Glen will provide leadership nationally to help steer the future of the hospice and palliative care industry. Glen has been with Hospice of Davidson County since 2012, and will bring over 20 years of experience in healthcare to the national steering committee.

Chelsie Searce was appointed a 2-year term beginning on January 1, 2022. As a member of the Next Generation Leadership Advisory Council, Chelsie will directly impact leadership development with a focus on retention and engagement of young professionals in the field. This Advisory Council offers input and guidance to NHPCO leadership and the Board of Directors to best meet the needs of young industry professionals.

Hospice of Davidson County is pleased to have Agency programs, staff, and initiatives represented in the national spotlight. Both staff members' appointments were determined by association Chairs in consultation with NHPCO staff, including Edo Branch, President & Chief Executive Officer of the NHPCO.
