

WCSWFL Awarded $20,000 Grant from Community Foundation of Sarasota County to Support New Wildlife Rehab Hospital

The grant received will be used to purchase an X-ray machine for the hospital.

VENICE, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, March 9, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Paul A. and Veronica H. Gross Wildlife Center of Southwest Florida will be adding an x-ray machine to their new wildlife rehabilitation hospital. Partial funding for this project is provided by the Animal Welfare Grant program of the Community Foundation of Sarasota County.

The new wildlife hospital will help the Wildlife Center of Southwest Florida to provide a higher level of care to animals that are injured or sick. They first started as a backyard project where they would care for approximately 315 animals each year. Seventeen years later, they see thousands of animals each year.

Their primary duties involve rescuing and rehabilitating native wildlife and then returning them to nature. Many of the animals they treat often require x-rays for proper diagnosis. Not having suitable facilities can lead to delays in treating the animal, and even the slightest delay in treatment could cost an animal its life.

Karen Durette, Board President at the Wildlife Center of Southwest Florida, says, "We are so grateful to the Community Foundation of Sarasota County for assisting us in purchasing x-ray equipment for our new hospital. This new wireless system will let us diagnose immediately, even in the field, and we can even e-mail x-rays to specialists outside our area for expert advice."

The Wildlife Center of Southwest Florida will break ground for the new hospital soon. The x-ray equipment will heighten their ability to save the lives of many more wildlife patients.

About the Wildlife Center of Southwest Florida
