While making the announcement, an IBQMI® representative said that an approved partner is only supposed to enroll a few students to recover the initial investment, which is normally outside the training fees earned from the learners.

Benefits

IBQMI® brand can help accredited training partners gain instant recognition as well as benefit from the marketing and sales support that the institution offers to its partners. Partners also stand to gain more credibility and a chance to attract more students with their IBQMI® status. The institution representative said it is a seal of quality and assurance that students acquire the proper training to help them receive their certification. The company also revealed that ATPs get more exposure with the partnership by being listed on IBQMI ATP® Directory, where organizations and individuals find the nearest ATPs that meet their training needs. To ensure quality training in accordance with IBQMI® standards, the institution conducts an evaluation process. With mature business practices and courses, it awards the IBQMI® ATP status to those aligned with its core values.
