Film and TV Composer Frank Cogliano (HBO Max, Showtime) has released his debut full length LP "Computers of the World", available on digital and limited vinyl

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES, March 19, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Frank Cogliano (HBO Max, Showtime) has released his tour-de-force electronic music album "Computers of the World". Composed and recorded before the pandemic shutdown in the United States, Frank Cogliano produced this eclectic genre-jumping mixtape that confirms his status as a shape-shifting master of sonic manipulation. Frank Cogliano has had viral success with his analog video art, which he has released as an art project on his Instagram, attracting a cult following. The album is available on all digital platforms, as well as on limited edition vinyl available from the Official Frank Cogliano Store. "Computers of the World" is worth a listen to fans of experimental ambient electronic music, and would fit right in alongside classic releases from Boards of Canada, Aphex Twin and Tycho. Frank Cogliano is also a film and TV composer with credits ranging from HBO Max, Netflix, and Showtime, to Oscar-Winning films. He is multi-instrumentalist, playing all the instruments as well as mixing and producing the album. It is released by Indie label IDDA Records and is available in record stores across the country. Recent adds to rotation on the following radio stations: WESS, Radio UTD, WLAS,

Computers of the World is my first debut LP and I am so excited to release it on limited edition vinyl”
