Global Human Machine Interface (HMI) Market (2021
– 2028)

The Global Human Machine Interface (HMI) Market is accounted for $4.52 billion in 2021 and is expected to reach $7.36 billion by 2028 growing at a CAGR of 7.2% during the forecast period. Human machine interface (HMI) is referred to an automation that serve a connection between the operator and controller in an automated structure. Human machine interface (HMI) is used to optimize a process, by centralizing and digitizing, for the user, where the operators can see important pieces of information in different forms of graphs, chatbots, or digital assistance. The embedded HMI solutions segment is expected to dominate the human machine interface market during the forecast period, as it is connected to a network that enables easy communication between two machines and provides easy access to the operator. Asia Pacific is projected to hold the largest market share owing to the increase in disposable income and an increase in population. North America is projected to have the highest CAGR due to the early adoption of technologies in the region, growing demand for smart automation solutions, advancements in the Industrial Internet of Things (IIoT) technology, and increase the efficiency of manufacturing units.

Some of the key players profiled in the Human Machine Interface (HMI) Market include Schneider Electric SE, ABB Ltd., Rockwell Automation, Inc., Honeywell International, Inc., Siemens, General Electric Co, Omron Corporation, Eaton, Emerson Electric Co., Mitsubishi Electric Corporation, Advantech Co., Ltd, Yokogawa Electric Corporation, Beckhoff Automation, Beijer Electronics Group, and Kontron Ag.
