Inc., a leader in self storage technology, announced its integration with PTI StorLogix Cloud access control software, giving self storage operators the option to utilize the worldwide leader in security solutions for the self storage industry.

The API integration adds to a growing number of gate system integrations available in Tenant’s property management system Hummingbird. Operators and managers can simply press a few buttons within Hummingbird to edit access codes, suspend users, activate users, and delete users on properties that utilize PTI’s StorLogix Cloud as their access control security software.

“This is a highly anticipated integration with one of the emerging leaders in self-storage,” said Nathan Davenport, Solutions Manager at PTI Security Systems. “With a seamless syncing of data between Tenant Inc. and StorLogix Cloud, self-storage operators and customers alike benefit from an improved experience.”

The latest API integration provides StorLogix Cloud and Hummingbird users with a cloud-to-cloud integration between the two applications that allows for real-time syncing. The integration is rooted in the complementary strengths of the software solutions; Hummingbird in property management and StorLogix Cloud in access control security technology. When combined with PTI’s StorLogix Cloud, the amenities provided by Hummingbird will give owners and operators a complete self-storage management solution.

Tenant Inc. is continuing to partner with self-storage operators and access control software vendors to bring even more innovative options to Hummingbird.
