Market Dynamics:

Fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) are non-durable products that are sold quickly at relatively lower costs. Packaged consumer goods cover a variety of segments including baby care, beauty care, home care, fabric, food & beverage, healthcare, feminine care, and tissues and towel, among others. Amid the COVID-19 pandemic, demand for fast-moving consumer goods such as disinfectants, general-purpose hand wash, dispensers, and liquid soaps among others increased exponentially. Growing awareness regarding health and hygiene among consumers have boosted their demand and resulted in a strong market position. Increasing focus on designing robust supply chain framework, expansion of fleet, and improvements in multi-product supply chains have further contributed to the growth of the FMCG industry. Increasing consumption of consumer goods, availability of high-quality goods at affordable prices, and growing availability of convenience goods are some other factors expected to drive market revenue growth over the forecast period.

Key companies in the market are exploring value-creating markets and expand their product portfolio with new additions of goods and through thorough innovations and adoption of new marketing opportunities. Investment in new technologies and rapid advancements in manufacturing to gain a robust footing in the market are some other factors expected to drive market growth over the forecast period.
