Ramadan begins in the first week of April this year and is celebrated globally by fasting from Dawn to sunset and ended daily by a meal at night. While families struggle to just provide even one meal on a daily basis, the worry of food insecurity grows deeper during Ramadan.

“Any religious celebration should be stress-free and a time of happiness for those observing with their loved ones, and each holiday season, such as Thanksgiving, Christmas and Ramadan, LIFE is fortunate to have the capability of giving families a sense of joy through our various seasonal programs and services during those particular times,” said Dr. Hany Saqr, CEO of LIFE.

Food baskets include a variety of items such as cooking oil, dates, rice, lentils, salt, sugar, flour, vegetables, spices and much more. “We like to provide a variety of staple foods to families based on their diverse cultural cuisines, so that they are able to make the foods that they enjoy to eat,” said Dr. Hany Saqr. “Each country has its own unique traditions when it comes to what is on the table during the time of breaking fast, and we like to make sure that we accommodate that for them.” Each food basket contains enough supplies to last a family of seven for the whole month of Ramadan.

LIFE has already begun Ramadan food basket distributions this year with its first three taking place in Yemen, Uganda and Egypt. On the agenda for additional food basket distributions is twenty-three more countries, which will take place from now until the start of Ramadan.
