Fast forward to today, Jay has invested in and helped build many of Canada's top performing Financial Technology (FinTech) Platforms and continues to stay focused on the FinTech space where he sees massive growth and opportunity over the next few years.

“Financial Technology is an incredible industry”, Says Jay. “In today’s society people need access to good and services quicker than ever before especially given the growth in online access to e-commerce and financial services. I expect to stay focused within the Financial Technology markets helping as many platforms as possible generate even more revenue through smart business and innovative customer acquisitions.”
