SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, UNITED STATES, March 29, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- What is emergency preparedness? The term refers to the steps you take to make sure you are safe before, during and after an emergency or natural disaster. These plans are important for your safety in both natural disasters and man-made disasters. Examples of natural disasters are floods, blizzards, tornadoes and earthquakes. Man-made disasters can include explosions, fires, chemical and biological attacks. Since the events of September 11, 2001, and more recently, Hurricane Katrina, Americans are more aware of emergencies. According to a 2004 Harris Poll, 96 percent of Americans feel it is important to prepare for emergencies, but less than 20 percent describe themselves as totally prepared.

Despite guidelines from government organizations and community based services like the American Red Cross, only 42 percent of Americans have created a personal emergency kit. People with disabilities may be especially vulnerable during and after emergencies. In an emergency, many systems you rely on may not function as well as they usually do. Familiar landmarks and usual travel routes you and your service animal know may be altered. Utilities like electricity, water, gas and phone service may be disrupted. You might need to temporarily evacuate to a shelter which may not be fully accessible for your needs. The tips and strategies in this newsletter can help you plan to be prepared for these situations.

Survivalism is a social movement of individuals or groups (called survivalists or preppers) who proactively prepare for emergencies, including natural disasters, as well as disruptions to social, political, or economic order <https://www.preppershowsusa.com/prepper-show/be-prepared-expo-2022/> Preparations may anticipate short-term scenarios or long-term, on scales ranging from personal adversity, to local disruption of services, to international or global catastrophe. Survivalism may be limited to preparing for a personal emergency, such as job loss or being stranded in the wild or under adverse weather conditions. The emphasis is on self-reliance, stockpiling supplies, and gaining survival knowledge and skills. Survivalists often acquire emergency medical and self-defense training, stockpile food and water, prepare to become self-sufficient, and build structures such as survival retreats or underground shelters that may help them survive a catastrophe. Use of the term survivalist dates from the early 1980s (en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Survivalism).

Noun: prepper; plural noun: preppers:
A person who believes a catastrophic disaster or emergency is likely to occur in the future and makes active preparations for it, typically by stockpiling food, ammunition, and other supplies ... Example: "there's no agreement among preppers about what disaster is most imminent." It's a known fact: 2020 and 2021 were both a disaster. 2022 doesn't have to be. First, get yourself a quality laptop. There is no getting away from the fact that we all live through our computers, so sourcing a good model from the start makes sense. Then get surfing. These prepper websites will help you prepare for the worst. These are the biggest and best prepper, survivalism, and homesteading websites in the world. Some cover prepping in general; others cover more specific prepping niches, like gardening and food preparedness. The one thing they all have in common is useful information. Being able to see a lot of the projects, methods, and tips that content creators upload every single day is a great way to learn things that I might not have mastered, or to find new ideas for weekend projects and ways to innovate my own self-sufficient journey. If one searches for survival or prepping content on YouTube, they will have countless of hours of outdoor, or in-the-home hacks at their disposal. And the best thing is, it's free, it doesn't cost a subscription, and anyone can pause it and save it for a later day. With each description, I have also included a link to their channels in the headline, so anyone can easily head on over and check out their best stuff to see what their YouTube survival channel is all about. Because I am always watching this type of content on YouTube, I made this extensive list of top survival-related YouTube channels that are worth checking out. I have ranked them in order of subscribers, which in the YouTube world, is a good measure of popularity and excellent survival hacks. There are a lot of channels in this list, so you might want to bookmark this page, and come back later on for some survival weekend viewing.

Lately people are spending more and more time watching YouTube rather than regular television. There wasn't much quality content on YouTube at first, but over the past few years some very 'experienced preppers' have started some fantastic channels. Since a lot of people aren't aware of this, I decided to compile a list of the 100 best prepper and survivalist YouTube channels (in my opinion). It would take days, maybe even weeks to check all these out, so I encourage you to bookmark this page. If you're a prepper and there's nothing on TV, subscribe to these channels and your YouTube feed will fill up with hours of great content every day! (beready.utah.gov/be-ready-utah-expo/) The 25 best channels (in alphabetical order):
