

'White House Chronicle' Inks Renewal Contract with SiriusXM

Renewal Contract Marks 14th Year of Collaboration

WASHINGTON DC, USA, March 30, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "White House Chronicle," the long-running news and public affairs program on PBS, announced today that it has signed another contract extension with SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

'White House Chronicle' has brought something new to television with its crisp thinking, panache, and humor in tackling big subjects. So, too, SiriusXM has had a revolutionary impact on radio."

"Collaborating with SiriusXM has been wonderful for me and the crew at 'White House Chronicle.' We are in our 14th year together, and we look forward to another year with this contract renewal," said Llewellyn King, the program's creator, executive producer and host.

"'White House Chronicle' has brought something new to weekly programs of this nature with its crisp thinking, panache, and humor in tackling big subjects. So, too, SiriusXM has had a revolutionary and hugely positive impact on radio," King said, adding, "Its channels give many voices a hearing without the limits that terrestrial radio has always had to face."

"White House Chronicle" has been part of the critical weekend lineup on SiriusXM's POTUS, Channel 124, since 2008. King has also been a contributor to other SiriusXM programs, including the "Joe Madison Show" on Urban View, Channel 126.

"White House Chronicle" often delves into ground-breaking technologies medicine and energy. Early in the pandemic, for example, the program featured a joint effort by the University of Louisville and Arizona State University to examine wastewater to track Covid 19. The program has been at the forefront of reporting on clean energy, including green hydrogen, small modular reactors, carbon capture utilization and storage, and battery technology.

"SiriusXM also shows what can be done when creativity melds with technology," King said. "We are happy and honored to continue as part of that fusion."

About "White House Chronicle"
