methods of preaching. You point to the various delivery options and the techniques that work best with each one. There is an excellent section on hermeneutics and how to move from text to topic to sermon. You do a great job in discussing literary genres and how each genre best lends itself to the preaching task.”

— Marvin A. McMickle, Ph.D., President/Professor of Church, Leadership, Colgate Rochester Crozer Divinity

School, New York.

“This book is for me a well-needed piece of writing about transformation. It captures the author’s transformation in the ministry of preaching — from the infancy of innocent desire to the maturity of unfolding the Word of God to the hearts of men with authentic, biblical, and life-changing power. For ministers, and preachers to do — to reflect, prepare, and then preach with power.”
