

Nuclear war threats inspires new music lyric video on YouTube

New music from Alex Hirsch

SAN DIEGO, CA, USA, April 4, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Alex Hirsch has released a new song "Does Anybody Care", available now on most online music stores and streaming services.

A YouTube lyric video has been published for fans to read or sing along with the new song.

The song, created by writer/composer Carl Paradise, is about fears of nuclear war.

The timely song and video, in light of recent international events, highlights the history of school safety drills in the United States during the Cold War.

The lyric video was created by graphic artist Jenna Robinson with direction from the songwriter.

The music features San Diego saxophone player Tripp Sprague, and piano by Mark Hattersley. Other musicians include Jen Gomes on background vocals and Dave Buerger on bass.

The song was produced, arranged, and mixed by Carl Paradise, Alex Hirsch, and Mark Charles Hattersley, and mastered by Jonny Altepeter.

“

I never thought, that the day
would come.
We'd have to worry, 'bout an atomic bomb.
I don't wanna die by a nuclear blast.
How long is this gonna last?"

Carl Paradise

Carl Paradise

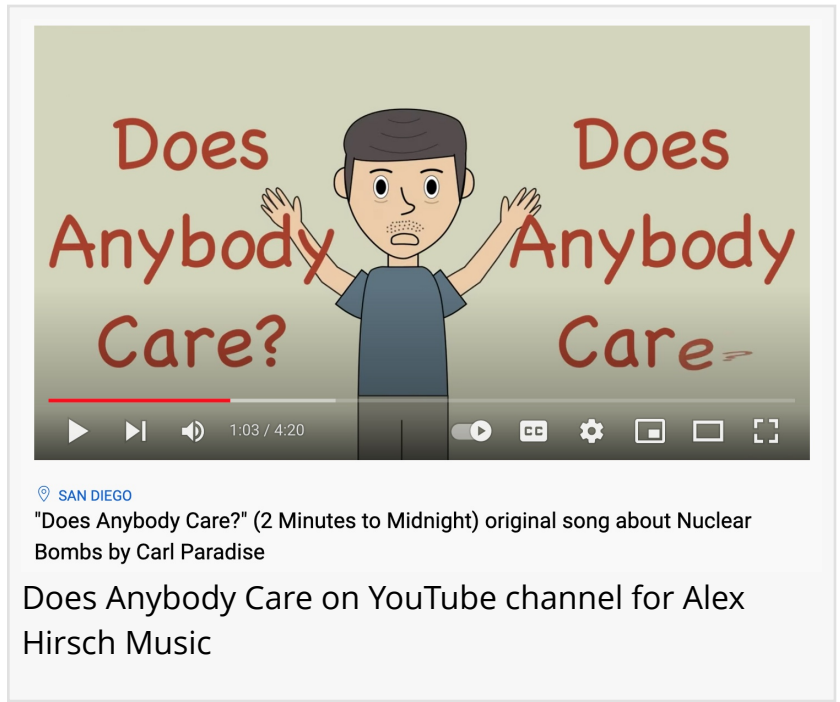

Akubot Records / Carl Paradise

pr@carlparadise.com

Visit us on social media:

Twitter

Other

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/567166327>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2024 Newsmatics Inc. All Right Reserved.