Some Key Highlights in Report

- In April 2020, HSO Health Care GmbH was acquired by Chr Hansen Holding A/S in order to strengthen the probiotics business of Chr Hansen Holding A/S. The acquisition is expected to help Chr Hansen Holding A/S in the expansion of its global microbial platform.
- Dry segment accounted for largest revenue share in 2020. The formulation process of the dry form of nutraceutical ingredients is much easier compared to liquid form, particularly for manufacturing significant volume, which is boosting the demand for dry form.
- Probiotic segment revenue is expected to register a rapid CAGR during the forecast period. Increasing investments by major manufacturers of food & beverage products on research and development activities for the advancement of probiotics and launch of new probiotic products are expected to drive the growth of the segment.
