The author writes, "It was as if a new world had opened up for her. The moment she lowered her head below the surface of the water, her face mask fastened, the breathing tube secured in her mouth, she entered a different dimension, which, looking from above..."

"Stepping Stones was a welcome surprise during this dull time of COVID. The dialogue was clever; the plot interesting and fresh. I enjoyed every word and was disappointed when I finished. Looking forward to another novel by Phyllis Dubetsky soon!"
