“From site prep and demolition to the collection, transportation, sorting, processing, and manufacturing of end products, our customers will now have a full-spectrum solution to what was previously a very segmented process.” says Dan Guimont, Founder & Chairman of DTG Recycle. “Some of the many benefits to our customers include integrated scheduling, access to other site services we offer such as portable restrooms and street sweeping, and helping them attain their sustainability goals by reducing material from going to the landfill.”

Recovered materials from these projects can be turned into things like gypsum fertilizer, renewable fuels, and building products made from plastic.

“This is a bitter-sweet moment for me,” says Bobby Wolford. “I’m certain my customers and employees are in good hands with DTG, and I am excited for the opportunities for growth and advancement this acquisition gives them.”

DTG Recycle will gain Wolford’s 10-acre site in Maltby, WA, which will become home to the newly planned state-of-the-art facility and add concrete recycling capabilities. Additionally, DTG will integrate Wolford’s low-boys, side-dumps, end-dumps, walking floor trailers, and heavy equipment into its expansive fleet.
