

Andy Thomson Brings in Another $88k in March

Thomson launches new PC to bolster fundraising effort

BOCA RATON, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES, April 8, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Andy Thomson, Democrat from Boca Raton, continues to show fundraising prowess in his campaign for District 91 of the Florida House of Representatives.

In March 2022, Thomson will report raising $28,000 into his campaign account, loaning $30,000 into his campaign account, and raising another $30,000 into the newly launched Running with Andy Thomson Political Committee. This will bring the total for March to $88,000.

To date, Thomson has brought in a total of $158,000 since filing for office in February.

"I'm honored by the support received so far. Our message is resonating and we are seeing support for the campaign grow both financially and through endorsements. Voters are looking for a problem solver and consensus builder to focus on solutions that move our State forward. I am ready to take on that charge," said Thomson.

Andy's strong support goes beyond just fundraising. He has secured the endorsement of fourteen elected officials, including current House District 91 Representative Emily Slosberg-King.

Andy was elected to the Boca Raton City Council during a special election in August 2018 and was re-elected without opposition in March 2020.

Andy currently serves as Vice-Chair of the Boca Raton Community Redevelopment Agency that governs Boca's downtown. He also serves on the governing board of the Palm Beach
