Anais Nin.

Their journey began to unfold when the group ventured to an island that had never been found on a map. A vortex formed in the central portion of the island, and the group was transported below the ocean surface, where Jessica meets a remarkably familiar man. Jessica managed to unearth many revelations, which included the fact that the mysterious man was her lost father and an ancient scientist.

Jessica and her ragtag group returned home and discovered with horror that Jessica's mother was kidnapped. Mrs. Panthera might be the only person to know of her mother's location, a location which led them to a military base. The realization of the kidnapping being a ploy to bring Soneya to the base for capture becomes evident as the soldiers encroach upon Jessica and Soneya's location. A confrontation between the soldiers and leaders of the base with Soneya brings out Jessica's true inner power that was buried all her life and the discovery of her true self.
