Antiques in the Cotswolds”

Among the many highlights will be fabulous Georgian traditional furniture from WR Harvey Antiques who specialise in 18th and early 19th century pieces. Now often undervalued, fine English furniture is undergoing a renaissance as home furnishers once again appreciate its ever-lasting quality.

Among views of the Cotswolds to be shown by art specialists will be a superb painting by Charles March Gere, (1869-1957), titled ‘The Cotswolds Edge and Severn Vale’. Gere was a member of the Birmingham Group of Artist-Craftsmen formed in the 1890’s who lived in Painswick by 1902, the small Cotswold town with which he is long associated. It will be offered for sale by Newman Fine Art with a price tag of £2,800.

Showing for the first time at Westonbirt will be Hispanic Antiques who specialise in Spanish historic and decorative objets d'art. Their eye-catching exhibits include a painted 19th century Hispano-Moresque dish at £850 and an extremely rare hand coloured example of Munster's map of Spain and Portugal from the 1540 edition of Geographia, measuring 38cm x 31cm, priced at £1,200.

Returning to the fair after an absence of more than ten years will be Jim Dickson Antiquarian Maps and Prints. Collectors will find a mix of academic and decorative maps and prints, many of Worcester and the local area and dating back more than 300 years.

In addition to antiques and fine art, the fair always offers silver, jewellery, glass and ceramics. Candice Horley shows 20th century porcelain and art prints, Plaza and Shapiro specialises in fine jewellery, and Garret & Hurst bring French and European sculpture.

The Cotswolds Decorative, Antiques & Art Fair takes place in the atmospheric setting of Westonbirt House, now a prestigious school, occupying the Great Hall, Orangery and adjoining rooms

Approximately 40 dealers will be exhibiting at this popular event that began in 1989.

Public Admission is £5.00.

Open Times: Friday - Sunday 11.00am-5.00pm
