The rising product usage in food items, owing to its foaming, gelling, and stabilizing properties, is among the key factors driving the gelatin market. Besides this, the growing health concerns among consumers are propelling the requirement for clean label products, functional foods, and supplements, which comprise of gelatin as an essential component. This, in turn, is further catalyzing the market growth. Additionally, the inflating product utilization in the pharmaceutical industry for manufacturing drugs used to combat arthritis and osteoporosis is acting as another significant growth-inducing factor. Apart from this, the expanding popularity of plant-based or vegan product variants is anticipated to bolster the gelatin market in the coming years.
