The escalating prevalence of obesity is encouraging consumers to opt for healthier snacks and breakfast options, which is among the primary factors driving the peanut butter market. Besides this, the inflating awareness among individuals towards the benefits of consuming plant-based proteins is further catalyzing market growth. Moreover, the widespread and easy availability of numerous product variants, such as honey roasted, creamy, natural, reduced fat, etc., is acting as another significant growth-inducing factor. In line with this, the expanding popularity of crunchy and chocolate peanut butter is also positively influencing the global market. Furthermore, the increasing product adoption among fitness enthusiasts, on account of its enhanced protein content and advantages over conventional butter, is anticipated to fuel the peanut butter market over the forecasted period.
