

Introducing Bored Human NFT: The World's Funniest NFT Project to Date!

One very bored human, and 1,500 Bored Ape inspired REAL photographs with the legendary BAYC props.

DUBLIN, IRELAND, April 21, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The creator of Bored Human is pleased to announce the upcoming launch of the metaverse's funniest NFT project thus far.

Bored Human is the first high-utility Human Profile Pic (PFP) NFT project on Ethereum and consists of 1,500 real photographs captured in a professional photoshoot studio.

Founded by Rohaan, Bored Human is inspired by the popular Bored Ape Yacht Club (BAYC) and each NFT features Rohaan sitting on a stool with legendary props from BAYC itself. With this inspiration, Rohaan and his team headed to a photography studio to create their own renditions of the legendary BAYC NFTs, using his own face with props such as a King's crown, smoking pipes, sailor's hats, and even laser eyes (ok, perhaps these are photoshopped).

"We couldn't be giddier about being at the helm of the first High-Utility Human NFT Project on ETH," says Rohaan. "While you've seen the Bored Apes, it's now time for the Bored Human to shine."

In addition to being the first PFP to hit the Ethereum, another thing that sets this project apart from the competition is that this one actually boasts a useful utility which grants Bored Human holders access to exclusive NFT search tools. This search tool is in the form of a dashboard that allows users to track all up-and-coming NFT projects before they go viral.

“It really sucks to find out about a cool NFT project when prices are already sky-high,” Rohaan explains. “Our aim is to help the average working person access the NFT space and make profit well before that happens. Even though our team is bored all the time, we still manage to get some neat stuff done.”
