

VetJobs partners with the Infosec Institute to Provide Cybersecurity Scholarships to Veterans and Military Spouses

New partnership provides transitioning service members, veterans, National Guard members, reservists and military spouses with annual scholarship opportunities.

MADISON, WI, USA, April 21, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Today, VetJobs, the most successful military-affiliated employment support nonprofit, announced it has become the latest Infosec Gives Partner with the Infosec Institute, the leading cybersecurity education company. VetJobs provides premier job placement services and continuing education to transitioning service members, veterans, National Guard members, reservists, and military spouses.

The Infosec Gives Partner Program will enable VetJobs to award three annual Infosec Accelerate Scholarships—fully funded by Infosec—through its organization. Each Infosec Accelerate Scholarship provides qualified recipients lifetime access to Infosec Skills, the leading security and Information Technology (IT) skill development platform with over 1,000 hours of hands-on cybersecurity training. Each lifetime Infosec Accelerate Scholarship is valued at $15,000.

As the second official Infosec Gives partner, VetJobs will award three scholarships to a transitioning service member, veteran, National Guardsman, reservist, or military spouse, enabling them to build and enhance their cybersecurity skills. Beyond the annual scholarships, the Infosec and VetJobs partnership provides discounted online technical training opportunities to VetJobs' Technology Program participants through the Infosec Skills platform.

"We've been committed to helping veterans and military spouses find meaningful employment for over 15 years," says Stacy Bayton, VetJobs Sr. Executive Vice President. "Partnerships like this are critical to ensuring that our military, veterans, and military spouses have the skills they need for placement in high demand, high growth careers. We look forward to expanding our work with Infosec and increasing the placement of veterans and military spouses into key cyber roles around the world." Jack Koziol, Infosec's CEO and founder, says, "We are honored to partner with VetJobs to provide these cybersecurity training and upskilling opportunities to the military community. This partnership will set up our veterans for a rewarding career in a booming industry and help fill the millions of open cyber roles worldwide with these talented individuals. We look forward to extending our Infosec Skills resources to help place veterans and their families in these critical cyber roles.”

Infosec’s technical skill development platform, Infosec Skills, includes over 1,200 learning resources to assess teams and close skills gaps with hands-on cyber ranges, labs, projects and courses mapped to the NICE Workforce Framework for Cybersecurity and the MITRE ATT&CK® Matrix for Enterprise.
