National Poll Shows that Staffing Shortages Are Hurting Dental Practice Capacity, Leading Dentists to Search for Solutions

TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA, April 25, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A recent American Dental Association (ADA) poll has revealed that nearly one-third of all responding dentists report staffing shortages as the cause of an estimated 11 percent unfilled patient capacity.

We responded to this at TempStars by perfecting our technology to make sure our dental office clients were able to find not only temporary employees, but full-time employees, who were willing to work.”

Dr. James Younger, CEO and Founder of TempStars

The findings, which were part of the ADA Health Policy Institute's Economic Outlook and Emerging Issues in Dentistry poll, did not surprise the Dr. James Younger - a practicing dentist and Founder/CEO of TempStars, North America's fastest growing and top-rated dental temping and hiring service.

“Finding, hiring and retaining a great team has always been a challenge,” said Dr. Younger. “And the pandemic exacerbated the situation, as many hygienists and dental assistants were wary about going to back work. We responded to this at TempStars by perfecting our technology to make sure our dental office clients were able to find not only temporary employees, but full-time employees, who were willing to work.

“Even as we (hopefully) start to see the pandemic because less of an issue, dental offices are still struggling to find team members as many of them have gravitated to work from home opportunities.”

Dr. Younger added that TempStars “has been able to attract hygienists and dental assistants by creating a platform that makes it easier for them to find temporary and full time opportunities with the flexibility people want in their careers now. All this, empowered by the TempStars team who are genuinely committed to improving the work lives of dental professionals.

“What we have created is a platform that caters to both offices and the employees. That’s why we have the most opportunities for hygienists and dental assistants, while giving the offices the most qualified candidates.”
