From Friday 29th April to Wednesday 4th May 2022, the headquarters of Gibraltar's historic Xapo Bank will be transformed into an incredible interactive setting offering buyers and collectors the chance to see and buy work from top digital artists and creators.

The highlight of the event will be an NFT auction where work from over 26 world-renowned artists will go under the hammer, with art presented for sale on large-format NFT screens specially designed for the event.

Every piece will be on sale using ETH, and MetaMask Wallet technology which ensures an authenticated and signed version of the digital asset, providing proof of ownership, provenance, and a set of smart contracts. As well as taking place live, the NFT sales will also run online.

"As NFT art continues to take the world by storm, interest in building a collection has never been greater, both among seasoned collectors as well as those dipping their toes into the water for the first time," says Crypto Art Island co-founder and award-winning entrepreneur and international art dealer Joëlle Dinnage.

"Crypto Art Island brings together some of the most exciting, innovative artists working in the space, in a novel and engaging way, making it at once simple and safe as well as completely thrilling to find and acquire a statement piece.

"The art fair line-up reads like a veritable who's who of NFT artists who are creating a real buzz in the crypto art world, and there will be a wealth of amazing and unique pieces being auctioned to build or start a collection," she continues.

"With investors and collectors from around the globe joining the auction in person and online, it really is an unmissable opportunity to see and acquire something incredible."
