

Angelic Advice to Live a Good and Happy Life

Artist Expands Access to Angels' Encouragement with New WingTips Gift Line

MINNEAPOLIS, MN, USA, April 27, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Liv Lane had no training or skills in watercolor painting when, in 2017, the angels she's seen and heard her entire life asked that she find a paint set and begin by following their instructions on every brushstroke and color. And yet, the results were captivating; within a year, Lane held her first art show in Minneapolis and her abstract, ethereal artwork was being scooped up by customers across the U.S. and Canada.

Last year, when the angels guided her to create more than 80 watercolor sketches of them and transcribe their words of advice, every original piece in the WingTips collection sold within minutes of being posted online. Now, in partnership with product development studio JuneCo, Lane is launching five WingTips print collections to make the angels' art and messages available to all.

Prelaunch orders are open for five WingTips gift sets that feature art and advice painted by Liv Lane in collaboration with the angels. Each set includes eleven 5"x5" art-quality prints of whimsical angel watercolor paintings, along with angelic advice and insight.

I hope these WingTips sets reveal how much the angels adore every single person, and want to help us feel good, do good and be happy.”

Each of the WingTips paintings features colorful, whimsical renderings of angels alongside their profound words of advice, handwritten by Lane, on how to be “a good and happy human.” The back of each art print features an in-depth explanation from the angels to build on that advice. Printed on sturdy, art-quality paper to encourage personal engagement, two of the sets include a wooden display easel to support a daily or weekly practice of reflection. Selecting an image to display each morning, for instance, sets clear intention for the day, and the display can be changed whenever a boost of encouragement, inspiration or support is needed.

“The angels love when we ask for their help and guidance,” said Lane. “But for many people it’s not easy to hear or notice when their angels swoop in to provide answers, inspiration or comfort. I hope these WingTips sets reveal how much the angels adore every single person, and want to help us feel good, do good and be happy.”

WingTips Collection

Launching May 11, all five WingTips sets comprise eleven 5"x5" art-quality prints. Two starter sets, “WingTips for Pursuing Your Dreams” and “WingTips for Finding Magic and Meaning,” are packaged with a wooden display easel in a clear gift box. Supplemental packs address three other themes — “WingTips for Facing Hard Times,” “WingTips for Healing Your Heart,” and “WingTips for Changing the World” — and are presented in sealed, clear sleeves.

Preorders are available now at LivLane.com, with first shipments beginning May 11. Those who order during this pre-launch period will receive an invitation to join a live (virtual) WingTips launch event with the artist the week of May 11.

Liv’s Experience with the Angels

After a lifetime of chatting with the angels, Liv Lane loves being able to share their light through the art and writings they create collaboratively.

Liv enjoyed a robust friendship with angels even when she was a young girl growing up in the Midwest. In an attempt to fit in, she hid this connection for much of her teen and young adult life, and focused on building a successful communications career and starting a family. A traumatic birth experience with her firstborn initiated a harrowing battle to heal the effects of post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Through that healing process, her intuitive gifts – including her connection to the angels – became too strong to ignore or hide anymore. Embracing her calling, Liv stepped away from her corporate career to speak, write and teach in collaboration with the angels.

She began painting with the angels at their request in 2017, following their precise instructions to create ethereal, abstract watercolor paintings, each with a corresponding angelic message.

Each 5"x5" WingTips print features an angel image along with handwritten angel advice.

Just a year later, that painting collaboration became life-saving therapy, as Liv faced three and a half years of grueling treatments and complications from a rare and aggressive form of breast cancer. Thrilled to be in remission today, under the watchful eye of her doctors and angels, Liv is eager to spread the love and encouragement of the angels with all who need it, through painting, teaching and whatever else the angels might have in store.

The back side of each WingTips print includes more explanation from the angels to build upon the advice handwritten alongside the angel painting on the front.
