

The Battle of Elm & 11th

A Winter Tale for Spring's Tucson Festival of Books

TUCSON, ARIZONA, UNITED STATES, April 29, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Tanner Frankfort's The Battle of Elm & 11th is a charming and hilarious rhyming children's book that revolves around two families: the Murphys and Conroys. Frankfort's work is part of the numerous books that Authors Press will be featuring during the Tucson Festival of Books on March 12 & 13 of this year, taking place on the pedestrian-friendly, open-air University of Arizona Mall.

The setting takes place on the titular Elm Street, where the Murphys and the Conroys reside in adjacent houses; the two families maintain a close relationship with each other, even mirroring each other's daily activities. One day after a great snowfall, the two families decided to build snowmen together. They awoke the next morning with great surprise when they saw what had happened to their creations: there appeared to be a battle between the snowmen!

Beautifully written! My students will love this book. Can't wait to use it for poetry, sequencing, and point of view with my 3rd graders!”

Amazon Customer Review

The book is a wonderful story about working together and reconciliation — not to mention that it's a hilarious wintertime tale.

"This is the "IT" children's book of the holidays! It's fun, clever, and poetic. All while teaching children a valuable life lesson encouraging kindness and value in humanity! Such a great read! I can't wait to gift this to friends and family for the holidays! I'll be patiently waiting for the sequel!!!"
