myHealth is essential to the community because we provide a safe & judgement free space for young people to get the healthcare, mental health counseling and information they need to succeed in life.”

Gerilyn Hausback, Executive Director, myHealth for teens & young adults myHealth began when a group of local health care providers, school professionals, law enforcement, church officials, and high school students came together to address the increase in unplanned pregnancies and the emergence of sexually transmitted infections among the youth population in the Excelsior area. In February 1972, West Suburban Teen Clinic opened with one full-time nurse, a Board of Directors, 125 volunteer nurses, 30 volunteer lab technicians and 20 volunteer physicians. Today, myHealth works closely with many school districts, youth serving community organizations and coalitions, and faith-based partners, to meet the growing needs of young people and their families in the areas they serve. Over the years myHealth has expanded services to include mental healthcare, general medical care, and dental care.

“myHealth is essential to the community because we provide a safe and judgement-free space for young people to get the healthcare and information they need to succeed in life,” says myHealth’s Executive Director, Gerilyn Hausback. “Our clients know that no matter who they are, what services they seek, or whether or not they can pay, they will receive excellent care from a team of professionals as they navigate young adulthood.”
