The World Protection Group, Inc. Drone Executive Protection and Investigation Services

drone pilots with the expert level of knowledge and training can implement its use.

In addition, WPG CEO Kent Moyer has recently traveled to Orlando, FL, to attend the AUVSI EPONENTIAL 2022 Conference where the most advanced drone technologies and software capabilities were displayed, and the new DJI drones highlighted.

WPG employs only the best FAA remote drone pilots operating its extensive fleet of drones. Pilots must have FEMA 100, 200, 300, and disaster response training, so they know what to do when emergencies and natural disasters occur and fit into the FEMA system and support law enforcement. The FAA waivers allow our 12 armed security trained pilots to conduct wide-ranging aerial sweeps, investigations, mapping, and patrols of properties and cities. In addition, air patrols working under the waivers will have greater surveillance and counter-surveillance abilities and far-reaching search and rescue capabilities, disaster response, and risk/vulnerability assessments. As a result, WPG's executive protection drone services are more sophisticated, thorough, and concentrated than ever before, ensuring its clients' safety at all times and under any circumstance.
