

Niagara Institute Launches New Guide on Skill Gaps in the Workplace

The pandemic has fundamentally changed how we work, and new skills are needed to keep pace. Find out what those skills are in this new guide.

TORONTO, ON, CANADA, May 11, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Niagara Institute, an industry leader in relevant and practical professional development for everyday leaders, today announced a free guide exploring how the pandemic exposed critical skill gaps for both employees and leaders to deliver in this new work environment. The new guide, "The Case for Upskilling: How the Pandemic has Exposed Skill Gaps in the Workplace," can be downloaded for free on their website.

The last two years' events have accelerated existing trends, created new priorities, and given rise to employees and leaders reevaluating their employment and what they want out of work. New rules, expectations, and ways of working are putting pressure on employees and leaders to adapt. However, these shifts have highlighted critical gaps in skills to do so.

Written in partnership with Niagara Institute's partner, Eagle's Flight, this comprehensive guide takes a deep dive into:

- >> The Current State of Work - How the pandemic has reshaped workplaces
- >> The Case for Upskilling - Why upskilling is critical to remain competitive and attract and keep talent
