“Since 1982, FSG has been built on the guiding principle that hard work, dedication to excellence, and continual learning will always yield a positive result for everyone involved. Currently in the U.S, there are over 23.5 million people living in food deserts and 2/3rds of our produce is imported into the US. FSG aims to utilize its 40 years of expertise and with our partners and clients, make an immediate difference in our communities, our states and our Nation. When growing indoors, you have a partner that is committed to growing together!”

The Indoor Ag Boom

FSG joins Contain Inc's growing list of equipment vendors, which expanded to more than 60 vendors early in 2022. "We're looking forward to working with FSG to enable their clients to find funding and get growing faster" said Nicola Kerslake, founder of Contain Inc.

The industry demand for growers isn't the only side seeing a rise as more and more reports are outlining the industry's potential and attractiveness for venture capitalists, companies, and investors alike. A recent Contain Inc briefing paper outlined the $455mm invested in the sector in the first quarter, as well as discussing its environmental, social and governance credentials. These have been enhanced during COVID. Leading in tech and sustainability, Indoor Agriculture is intertwined into a variety of industries, welcoming powerhouse new entrants like FSG, and swiftly rising into the mainstream.
