“2022 has already experienced great change in the form of NFTs, DeFi, DAOs, and more,” said Karim Nurani, CSO of Linqto and co-founder of GIC. “This is just a tiny taste of what is to come and we have to stay abreast of the future. When you dissect a concept or an investment you require a 360-degree perspective which is why we host the conference. We identify leading thinkers, brilliant minds, and investors. We learn from their perspectives and have in-depth conversations that are immersive, informative, but also extremely important and quite enjoyable. From there we can make informed investment decisions.”

The Global Investor Conference brings together investors from around the world to explore the explosive growth driving innovation and change. From the astronomical growth rate of crypto adoption and its impact on the financial system at large to the implementation of digital-first approaches to traditional experiences, including the metaverse, NFTs, and the rapid expansion and evolution of the Internet, GIC covers it all. Today's startup founders are pragmatic at heart—building elegant solutions for real-world problems of scale, access, and reliability. The resulting technology is changing how the world does business. GIC brings these founders together with investors and thought leaders from across industries to discuss these developments and build connections that will power the future of innovation in technology.

“We're hosting the Global Investor Conference in Lisbon because it is swiftly becoming Europe's most attractive tech hub,” said Nurani. “Boasting 7 unicorns, low operating costs, access to high-quality talent, and sunshine! It's fast becoming a maturing ecosystem one should be a part of.”

Speakers include Matthew Le Merle, Lisa Carmen Wang, Greg Kidd, Michael Casey, Susan Miller, Jordan Harry, and more! Local contribution includes Nuno Miguel Alves, Euclides Major, Bibi Sattar Marques, and Bernardo Corrêa de Barros.
