Place writes, "'The Space Between" is a collection of poetry about the struggles of mental illness, addiction, and loss. Although also inspired by my own personal struggles with OCD and alcoholism, I began writing poetry as an emotional outlet after my mother passed away in 2019. As I continued to put my feelings on paper, this book was created and dedicated to her and her loving memory."

Published by Book Vine Press, Place's new book is an awakening reminder to everyone that everyone can surpass the struggles in life when they believe that there is hope, though moving on and acceptance needs time.

The author hopes that readers would pursue happiness each day even though, at the moment, they may be walking on a dark path. The author wants the readers to push through all the challenges they have in their lives and try to cling to hope for a brighter tomorrow.
