Tina Paterson is a master of efficiency and helps leaders to navigate the complexity of working with remote teams.

With many companies across the world phasing a hybrid work model into their business structure on a permanent basis, more and more employees as well as business owners and leaders are questioning whether heading into the office is even necessary.

New statistics via findstack.com show that 77% of workers say they are actually more productive working from home and companies that allow remote work have seen an average increase of $2,000 in profit per remote worker.

This health crisis was the catalyst that changed everything.

Fast-forward to today, and Tina has pioneered the solution to create the freedom to have a successful career, better health and deep personal satisfaction and fulfillment outside of work.

With clients that include Amazon, Microsoft, GE and Sky. Tina provides expert insight on leveraging virtual teams to outperform your goals, remote working vs. remote leadership and getting clear on what really matters.
