

Dr. Robert Renteria Reaches Out to Middle School and High School Superintendents

by Fran Briggs

LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, May 11, 2022

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Dr. Robert Renteria is reaching out to superintendents across America his publicist announced today. He is offering no-cost academic and faith-inspired curricula to address social and emotional learning (SEL) as part of his cross-country tour of schools.

While middle school and high school students develop new skills in academics, many will also need tools to help conquer challenges inside and outside the classroom.

Renteria, who is also a civic leader and international best-selling author, says that among the challenges that compromise K- 12 education are bullying, gangs, drugs, and violence.

"Children are dealing with anger management and depression which makes it difficult to perform in school. Sadly, many have taken their lives," he explained. "This program not only helps our kids with their critical thinking skills and bridges the educational gap, but it also changes and saves lives of thousands of teens and at-risk youth."

Dr. Renteria says that dozens of school superintendents, principals, teachers, counselors, social workers, and parents recognize the cultural relevancy of the Barrio books and program. He is accepting bookings for speaking during the 2022 school year to personally connect with students and staff.

"Dr. Robert Renteria's program inspires students to take responsibility for managing their emotions and changing their life's trajectory," stated Fran Briggs, Publicist to Dr. Robert Renteria. "It gives our children hope and changes the landscape of a potentially dismal future."

Middle school and high school superintendents who seek additional information, including how to book Dr. Robert Renteria and reserve complimentary teaching tools can call 312-933-5619, or
