State agencies acquire products and services from private suppliers using several different procurement methods, depending on the type of the service or commodity required, and private vendors must apply to be included on the official vendor list. The vetting process is thorough and can take several weeks or months.

360 Health Services CEO Nick Pape

360 Health Services is a major supplier for federal governments, municipalities, hospitals, universities and large corporations, with the infrastructure, inventory, staff and multiple warehouse locations in place to deliver testing and medical supplies quickly to state agencies.

Since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic, 360 Health Services has delivered tens of millions of test kits, along with safety supplies and support. “The pandemic has given us the opportunity to connect our clients with the quality and quantity of resources they need quickly and efficiently, despite massive industry challenges,” said Pape, adding: “We’re looking forward to leveraging our proven system to deliver results in partnership with every state government across the U.S.”
