/EINPresswire.com/ -- ALM Hyundai of Florence is informing consumers that, due to a number of factors, the demand for Hyundai leases is on the increase. ALM Hyundai of Florence is renowned in the South Carolina area for its great selection of pre-owned, and brand-new Hyundai vehicles, ranging from efficient cars, to hybrids, electric vehicles and SUVs.

As ALM Hyundai of Florence has been supporting its car-buying clients for many years now, the company has developed a very keen radar when it comes to forecasting automotive trends. One such trend is the upcoming demand for Hyundai car leases that, as the company is predicting, will go up just after the spring of this year.

"Some of the biggest factors guiding our prediction are that the average prices for new cars are rising, finance interest rates are increasing, and the high cost of maintaining and repairing financed cars," says, Daniel Salazar, Vice President of Marketing at ALM Hyundai of Florence. "All of these factors mean consumers are paying a lot more to finance a vehicle, which is why we know that the demand for leasing a Hyundai is only going to increase."

"Leasing is a much more affordable option, which is critical now more than ever because the cost of living has skyrocketed – and shows no sign of slowing down," Salazar continues. "We all need to save money each month and leasing is one of the best ways to bring your payments down."
